The deadline for filing a Carrier Statement is fast approaching, and this is just another reminder for you, your colleagues, and/or clients that Carrier Statements need to be filed and postmarked by September 8, 1998. As stated in the Final Notice of Capacity, the Carrier Statement should identify any carrier's equipment, facilities, or services that do not have the capacity to meet the requirements as published in the Appendices of the Final Notice of Capacity, 63 Fed. Reg. 12220 (March 12, 1998). The Final Notice of Capacity is applicable to only local exchange service (wireline), cellular service, and broadband personal communications services (PCS). Any carrier providing local exchange, cellular, or broadband PCS that can identify equipment, facilities, or services on or before September 8, 1998, that do not have the capacity to meet the estimated number of simultaneous interceptions should submit a Carrier Statement. If a carrier has any doubt regarding its ability to meet its capacity requirements, it should submit a Carrier Statement. If a carrier does not submit a Carrier Statement by the September 8th deadline, its equipment, facilities, or services will not be eligible for reimbursement of the costs associated with its capacity requirements.

The Carrier Statement template developed by the CALEA Implementation Section can be retrieved from the Federal Bureau of Investigation's (FBI) Web site by accessing the Telecommunications Carrier Statement (<http://www.fbi.gov/calea/tele.htm>). One can also obtain information on the Carrier Statement from the Final Notice of Capacity Small Entity Compliance Guide, which can also be found on the FBI's Web site (<http://www.fbi.gov/calea/calea1.htm>).
